

Russia Brings Home Second Space Ship

MOSCOW (AP) — The second spaceship in the Soviet Union's troika mission landed safely today, returning three more cosmonauts to earth and leaving only two aloft in Soyuz 8.

Moscow Radio said Soyuz 7, carrying Anatoly Filipchenko, Vladislav Volkov and Viktor Gorbatko, landed in the Soviet Union. It was in orbit nearly five days.

Still flying in space aboard Soyuz 8 were veteran cosmonauts Vladimir Shatalov and Alexei Yeliseyev.

The other ship in this biggest-ever mission, Soyuz 6, was brought to earth Thursday with Georgy Shonin and Valery Kubasov aboard.

Soyuz 8 is expected to land Saturday.

Soyuz 7 landed 96 miles northwest of Karaganda, in Kazakhstan, only 15 miles from the site where Soyuz 6 came down. The broadcast said search parties reached the spacecraft quickly and the three cosmonauts "feel excellent."

The mission of Soyuz 7 was declared "successfully completed," as Soyuz 6's flight had been 24 hours earlier.

The only pioneering aspect of the flight announced so far has been the testing by Soyuz 6 of new automatic welding equipment to determine the feasibility of its use in the construction in space of a large orbiting station or platform, the goal of the current Soviet space program.

Reporting on the experiment, Dr. Nikolai Kazakov wrote in Krasnaya Zvezda—Red Star: "For the first time we obtained information on how different metals are welded and cut and how they melt in conditions of space vacuum and weightlessness."

"It is still too early to sum up the results, but it has already been proved that welding is possible in near-earth space," Boris Paton, a welding expert, wrote in Pravda.

val of additional money was contingent on the sacking of Murton.

Rockefeller sold him out at that point, Murton alleges, but it was a little gesture because the legislature did not in 1968 (nor in 1969) provide the kind of money needed for long-range reform.

Murton makes no effort to veil his contempt for the governor who brought him to Arkansas with such fanfare and backed him against powerful critics for more than a year. Asked if he thinks Rockefeller is still interested in prison reform, Murton said, "I think he is, as long as it doesn't interfere with his election."

While Sarver, like Murton, faults the legislature for its stinginess, he sees beyond the reluctant lawmakers to what may be the root of prison problems, not only in Arkansas, but over the nation.

"We're punishment oriented in this society of ours," Sarver says. "We say, 'Give me my pound of flesh.' We talk about debts to society, but I ask, 'What does an offender owe you as an individual?'"

He cited a case: Two men, each with a wife and five children, each gainfully employed, each with a clean record. They argue, fight and one kills the other.

"This man is no threat to society, but we send him to prison to punish him. His wife and five children go on welfare. The widow and her five children go on welfare. We pay to keep this man in prison. Who's paying whose debts?"

While Sarver maintained that reform is continuing (and those close to the prisons know that it is), he conceded that progress is slow, principally because of the physical nature of Arkansas' prisons.

Asked by a student whether he was running a correctional institution or a farm, Sarver replied, "A farm. We don't have a prison that utilizes farming. We have a farm that uses in-

Junior Miss Pageant at Arkadelphia

ARKADELPHIA— The annual Southwest Arkansas District Junior Miss Contest will be held at Henderson State College Auditorium on Nov. 7. Outstanding high school seniors from Pike, Sevier, Howard, Nevada, Hempstead, Little River, and Miller counties will be chosen to be district delegates. From this group state delegates are selected to go to the Arkansas Junior Miss Pageant to be held in Little Rock, December 27-30.

The Heart and Key Society of Henderson sponsors this district project. Miss Amy Greene is the group's sponsor. The Arkansas Junior Miss Program was again recognized as one of the nation's "Best State Pageants" for 1968-69. The purpose of this program is to seek the ideal high school senior girl by offering students an incentive and goals through awards of scholarships and prizes. The Junior Miss state and national presentations totaled over $300,000 last year. The national sponsors include Chevrolet, Eastman Kodak Co., Breck Co., and Kraft Foods. The state sponsor is the Arkansas Youth Council. Anne Landes of Magnolia won the title of Arkansas Junior Miss over 4,235 high school seniors who competed in 15 districts throughout the state. The Southwest district will be held along with the Achievement district at Henderson this year.

At least two from Hope are expected to enter.

Pressure on France in U.S. Drug Fight

By PEGGY SIMPSON

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen have been told the Nixon administration is widening the war on narcotics by putting pressure on France to clamp down on clandestine drug factories.

Diplomatic relations may be altered considerably if France doesn't respond, Assistant Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst told about 40 congressmen and congressional aides, according to several who attended the Thursday meeting.

Kleindienst repeated the administration's contention that much of the hard drugs smuggled into the United States through Mexico comes from illicit drug processors in France.

The closed-door meeting was called to answer questions for congressmen concerned about repercussions from Operation Intercept, a crackdown on smuggling along the U.S.-Mexico border. The administration decided last week to ease tough border inspections after Mexican officials agreed to step up efforts to nip narcotics traffic before it reaches the United States.

Kleindienst reportedly said the administration is giving the highest priority to stopping the flow of hard drugs into the United States. He said only so much can be accomplished by patrolling the borders, and that cooperation from Mexico and France is needed.

Rep. Richard White, D-Tex., set out Thursday's meeting and said Kleindienst promised another briefing after an Oct. 27 top level meeting of U.S. and Mexican officials in Mexico City.

"It's my impression the attorney general's office, and to some extent the administration, got a little bruised over this," White said, referring to Operation Intercept.

The border searches by U.S. officials brought outcries from both sides of the border but especially in Mexico where tourist business was curtailed.

Kleindienst ran into sharp questioning during the 45-minute session.

The administration official reportedly vowed to keep pressure on the border indefinitely, but he also announced searches would be modified to let traffic flow more freely between the two nations. During Operation Intercept lines of cars backed up at the border, touching off long delays and bitter complaints.

Nixon Is Taking His Views on High Cost of Living to Public

By JOHN M. PEARCE

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) President Nixon, buoyed by statistics pointing away from the hard, unremitting inflation of the past four years, is taking his views on still-rising living costs to the nation.

Nixon chose to make his promised economic report to the nation today in a half-hour radio broadcast largely directed to housewives—the captains of consumer spending. The nationwide broadcast was scheduled for 4 p.m. EDT.

He reportedly planned to make clear, with a no-nonsense approach, that the government thinks it is doing its part to end inflation and expects consumers, labor and businessmen to do the same.

"The President is going to talk to them directly in a way that we hope will enable them to get the message," presidential counselor Arthur F. Burns said Thursday.

He and Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, told a White House news conference definite indications of weakening inflation are beginning to appear.

Administration restraints "are pretty clearly now beginning to show some bite," McCracken said. Burns vowed "we will not budge" from restraints until they work.

While the President was preparing to appeal to consumers, his key economic advisers were trying to enlist the support of the nation's top industrialists for the administration policies.

Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy, McCracken and Burns were among those attending a closed meeting of the Business Council at Hot Springs, Va. Indications were the administration would make its first direct appeal to big business to help slow the inflationary spiral.

Government sources also said they expect a similar appeal would be made to organized labor for restraint in wage demands.

Places State Money in His Own Firm

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — O.D. Hadfield Jr., director of the state Real Estate Commission, said today that commission funds were placed in a savings and loan association of which he is a stockholder and director.

Hadfield told the Legislative Joint Auditing Committee of his connections with the American Security Savings and Loan firm of Little Rock. Hadfield appeared before the committee in connection with an audit of the commission that showed that about $55,000 in commission money was placed in the firm.

Rep. B. D. Brandon of Little Rock asked if he thought this was a violation of ethics and Hadfield said he did not feel guilty.

Hadfield also said under questioning by Rep. George Nowotny of Fort Smith that most of the commission insurance was with a company whose agent is Hadfield and Ray of Little Rock, a firm in which his family has an interest. Hadfield said he had no connection with the company.

Nowotny said the $1,675 a year premium seemed high. Hadfield said among the things the commission was insured for were false arrest, libel and slander. Nowotny said he couldn't understand why this insurance was needed.

Nowotny also said per diem expenses for the commission of $5,887 seemed high.

Hadfield also is executive director of the Arkansas Real Estate Association.

Sen. Thomas Penn of Cave City asked if holding the two positions would be similar to Forrest Rozzell, executive secretary of the Arkansas Education Association, also holding the position of state education commissioner.

Real Estate Man Placed on Probation

JAKE HOLLAND

Final rites for Jake Holland, 77, of Saratoga, were held Wednesday at Okay Baptist Church. Burial was in Saratoga Cemetery.

Mr. Holland who died at Murfreesboro Oct. 13 had lived in Howard and Hempstead Counties for 75 years. He was a retired carpenter for Ideal Cement Co. of Okay.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Opa Wahle Holland of Saratoga, a son, Kelsey Holland of Texarkana and a sister, Mrs. Ethel Ellis of Saratoga.

He calls it sentiment, I call it clutter.

One day, when he was safely at work, I decided to make a dent in the old newspapers nestled on closet shelves along with old scrapbooks and letters he wrote his parents from camp.

I had just gotten down some 50 pounds worth chronicling such events as the start of World War II when in he walked, home early for the first time in months. "What," he demanded accusingly, "do you have those out for?"

I thought fast. "I've developed a sudden interest in ancient history," I said. "I was going to look through these and see if they really told it like it was."

He's keeping an even sharper eye on the wastebasket these days. The only way I'll be able to get rid of those papers is to chew them up and swallow them.

U.S. Ships Are Involved With Soviet Trawler

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese navy ships were involved in a shooting incident with a Russian trawler off the coast of South Vietnam today, Vietnamese sources said.

A spokesman for President Nguyen Van Thieu said: "We had a report of an incident off Quang Ngai. We have conflicting reports and we are checking further."

Quang Ngai is in the northern part of the country, 80 miles south of Da Nang.

METHODIST KINDERGARTEN TAKES FIELD TRIP

On Wednesday, the children of Methodist Kindergarten enjoyed a field trip to the Hope Fire Station. This was in connection with a Health and Safety unit on Fire Prevention. The firemen allowed the children to inspect the fire trucks, the living and sleeping quarters of the resident firemen and they gave a demonstration of firemen arising from sound sleep, getting into their uniforms and into the trucks in a matter of seconds. They also gave an interesting demonstration of the flammable compounds found in many homes—such as hair spray and some bug killers.

Parents who assisted in transporting and caring for the children were: Mrs. Kinard Young, Mrs. Jim Lockhart, Mrs. Hoyt Townsend, Mrs. J. B. Rowe, Jr., and Mrs. E. E. Collins.

YOUTH BEAT

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

By ROGER DOUGHTY

ROCK WITH RELISH—As Frank Zappa once observed, "Just what the world needs — another record company" — which is just what it's gonna get, thanks to Bill Graham, the terrible-tempered rock czar at the Fillmore. Name of the company is (what else?) Fillmore Records. Graham's drumbeaters are claiming "What Nathan's did for hot dogs Fillmore will do for records," so have your mustard ready.

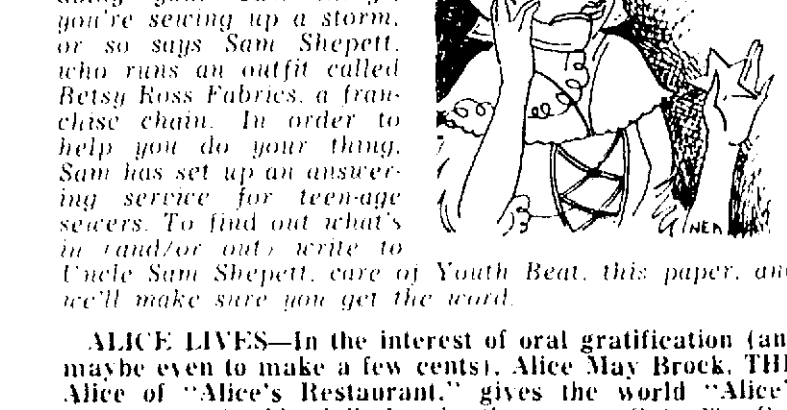

NASHVILLE CATS—Good sounds continue to come from Acuff-Rose's tiny Nashville studio, where The Neon Philharmonic's second Warner's album was put together. Don Grant handles the vocals on songs composed, arranged and conducted by Tupper Saussy with a lot of good people working in the background. We especially like "Are You Old Enough to Remember Dresden?" and "F. Scott Fitzgerald and William Shakespeare," but all eight cuts are worth a listen.

SON OF QUICK QUIZ

O. K., gang. Since you beat us to death on Quick Quiz No. 1 (how were we supposed to know you all read Socrates?) we'll try something different. Take, for example, The Guess Who, four nice guys from Manitoba who are working their way to the top with a lot of good sounds. Their first album was Wheatfield Soul. Their second was called Canned Wheat. Now that their third is half done (more or less) they're open for suggestions as to what to call it. Got an idea? Fill us in and we'll clue in The Guess Who, too. Best suggestion (according to Raymond and a few assorted friends) wins the Canned Wheat album and a guaranteed copy of the third Guess Who LP as soon as it's out. No guarantees they'll use your title, but it's worth a try. Write to us care of this paper. Think wheat.

STITCH IN TIME—So, it turns out you're sewing. What with maxis, minis and in-betweens. 'tis tough to keep up with fashion trends, but you're doing it with sewing machines. Buying your own patterns and doing your own things, you're sewing up a storm, or so says Sam Sheppard, who runs an outfit called Betsy Ross Fabrics, a franchise chain. In order to help you do your thing, Sam has set up an answering service for teen-age sewers. To find out what's in (and/or out), write to Uncle Sam Sheppard, care of Youth Beat, this paper, and we'll make sure you get the word.

ALICE LIVES—In the interest of oral gratification (and maybe even to make a few cents), Alice May Brock, THE Alice of "Alice's Restaurant," gives the world "Alice's Restaurant Cookbook," due in the stores Oct. 28. One Aliceism: "Don't be intimidated by foreign cookery. Tomatoes and oregano make it Italian; wine and tarragon make it French. Sour cream makes it Russian; lemon and cinnamon make it Greek. Soy sauce makes it Chinese; garlic makes it good." Ever wonder why Arlo Guthrie is so thin?

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A pair of newcomers to television action series were introduced Thursday night.

Rosey Grier, the former pro football player, made his debut as "Daniel Boone's" latest sidekick.

Fred Astaire turned up as the world's slickest crook, father of the heroic cat burglar of "It Takes a Thief."

Grier, playing an escaped slave adopted by an Indian tribe, exhibited an acting style that fell somewhere between the Jolly Green Giant and Batman's Robin. But then, the NBC series does not often give anyone, including star gress Parker, a chance to register much more than elementary emotions.

This week Daniel was busy as usual winning the American Revolution with little help except from his buddy. The assignment was to knock out—single handed—the British cannons at Fort Vincennes.

Gabe Cooper—that's Rosey—tagged along which was lucky because Daniel hurt his leg and could barely hobble. Grier did the job by brute strength. He ripped a door off by the hinges to get at some gunpowder, freed a felon by snapping his manacles and got rid of the cannons by flinging them, one by one, over a cliff. It may not have been much acting, but it was an interesting substitute for fist fights.

Astaire and Wagner are a good team—or they would be if they didn't have such arch humor to fling around. The plots are better than the words in this series. Astaire and Wagner roamed jauntily through a giddy story about robbing an Italian Riviera casino as part of a complicated government ruse to trap a counterfeiter.

During the summer Malachi Throne, who had played the federal agent who was hero Alex Mundy's boss, quit the show. Edward Blinn has been cast as a replacement and plays the top intelligence officer as a comedy cop.

The show made location shots abroad, and the backgrounds of some of the action were interesting and handsome.

Astaire will appear in several episodes this season, a good idea. The series can use some of his style and brightness since it is not doing too well in the Nielsen ratings.

Among programs that seem to be in real ratings trouble are ABC's "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "Music Scene," "New People," and "Land of Giants" and CBS' "The Good Guys." All are close to the bottom of the most recent list.

Recommended weekend viewing: "Frank Sinatra Jr. with Family and Friends," CBS, Sunday, 9-10 p.m. EDT, filmed in Las Vegas with Sinatra Sr., Nancy Sinatra, Jack Benny, Sammy Davis Jr. and the U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

WHEN WILL THEY EVER LEARN?

Dear Helen: I want my husband back!

About seven years ago, I had a child for Tom, who was married. I thought I really loved him, but he wouldn't get a divorce.

Six months later I met John and, to make Tom jealous, I married him. There wasn't anything John wouldn't do to make me and my son happy. He worshipped us. But I thought I was suffocating in his love, so I left him and went back to Tom.

Still, he wouldn't marry me, even though I was willing to pay for my divorce and his. After three years with him, I returned to my husband, but we only stayed together a year and then I had to leave Tom again.

Finally I woke up. John took us back—again—and I realized how much I cared for him. I've really meant it when I told him I love him and want to be with him always, but he can't believe me.

Now he's gone. He said he realized how unhappy I must be and he didn't want me to go on pretending. Last night a neighbor told me he is living with a girl across town.

How can I show my husband that this time, it's for real?—LEARNED TOO LATE

Dear L.T.L.: Sorry, I'm not convinced that this time is for real, but only that this time, John left you first, and you're smarting.

To convince John, you'll have to play the same waiting game he played for seven years. Let him know you'll do your penance — alone — until he comes home.—H.

Dear Helen: I'd like to share with you and your readers a letter our 19-year old son (in Vietnam) wrote to his brand new nephew, born on the day of the moon landing. It made me very proud, and I'm sure

Bobcats Go to Fairview at Camden

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Writer

Hope meets Fairview tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Camden. You would not want to miss it.

For the Bobcats stand at the door of success, thanks to a 5-1 record and No. 12 ranking in Arkansas' Class AA schools, and the Fairview Cardinals are virtually the final obstacle.

Coach Ronnie Higgins has the Cats confident of victory, and by now the emotions are keyed high as heaven. But the Cards are the home team and are favored by at least one source.

As for attitude, Hope has had the best efforts in practices all season this week, according to the coaching staff. All hands are ready, and now all we can do is wait for the kickoff.

Hope will win with its determination, desire, and defense. The Bobcats have finally gotten this close to a 4-AA Western Division championship, and the squad wants to meet Arkadelphia on November 21 for all the marbles.

Actually, the Cats stand at the crossroads after a fine start against some fair teams, with six more games left against much tougher outfits. And hopefully, the Bobcats' attitude and enthusiasm will pay off.

Anticipate either a fierce defensive struggle or an open offensive show, one extreme or the other. And the score will be a lovingly sweet 14-7 Hope victory on a cold and clear night at Fairview. KXAR will broadcast live from Tate Field in Camden, with pre-game activities beginning about 7 p.m.

Napoles Is Favored to Keep Title

By BOB MYERS

Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Welterweight champion Jose Napoles of Mexico City remains the favorite to retain his title but support mounted for the three-time titleholder, Emilio Griffith of New York, in their 15-round fight tonight.

Promoter George Parnassus anticipated a near-capacity crowd of 15,000 in the Forum and gate receipts of about $200,000, most from them partisan Napoles fans from below the border.

There will be no television or radio of the fight in the United States.

Napoles, 29, a devastating puncher with 39 knockouts to his credit, will be making the second defense of the crown he won from Curtis Cokes in this same Forum April 18. He stopped Cokes in 13 rounds and in rematch ended things in 11 in Mexico City June 29.

Griffith, now 30, the happy Mad-Hatter from Manhattan—he once worked in a millinery plant owned by co manager Howard Albert—has a remarkable background.

Griffith will be fighting in a title match for the 19th time, not counting an unofficial junior middleweight contest. He abandoned

Nashville Edges Past Hope Juniors

By RALPH ROUNTON

Halfback Bill Bagwell wrapped up the third quarter with a four-yard scoring plunge, and the Nashville Junior Scappers looked the Hope Yegger Bobkittens 6-0 last night at Nashville's Homecoming.

With the third consecutive defeat Yegger's record falls to 3-3, with Magnolia and Fairview remaining on the schedule. And last night Nashville used an aggressive defensive line and some crucial plays offensively for the win.

In the first half the Scappers nested in Bobkitten territory and failed to score twice after penetrating the Yegger ten. Hope's only threat of the half came in the closing moments, but didn't go past the Nashville 37.

A 49-yard pass from quarterback Timmy Turley to Lewis Gant gave the Scappers the break they needed late in the third segment, and Bagwell scored with four of his 53 yards on the night. The PAT was missed, and Yegger came back fighting.

However, two fumbles inside the Scrapper 25 stopped the final threats, as the Kittens were shut out for the first time all season. Fullback David Huddleston led the runners with 16 carries for 86 yards, and end Ricky Hart caught three passes for 23 yards.

Next Thursday the Bobkittens travel to Magnolia to play the rising Panther Cubs, who have given 4-AA Camden Arkadelphia some good battles this year.

done the 147-pound division title when he whipped Dick Tiger for the middleweight championship April 25, 1966.

He then lost, regained and lost the 160-pound title in fights with Italy's Nino Benvenuti. Never a legitimate middleweight, weighing only 150 pounds in the Tiger bout, Griffith and his other manager, Gil Clancy, said they were not worried about making the weight limit.

"I have never seen Napoles fight but I know he is strong and has a hard punch," Griffith said recently. Clancy corroborated the sentiment, having seen Napoles stow Cokes away in the second fight.

Napoles said he watched Griffith in several televised fights which were carried into his adopted country. Jose fled from Cuba when Fidel Castro came to power and boxing there all but disappeared.

Napoles, who fights for a guarantee of $80,000, has a 54-4-0 record. A cut from an opponent's head butt was the only time he has been stopped.

Notre Dame Favored Over Southern Cal

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer
College football teams play the numbers game again Saturday ... and Southern California's number may be up.

The Trojans, ranked No. 3 in the country, play No. 11 Notre Dame. But despite the wide difference in the rankings, the Irish are favored to undermine the boys from the Golden West.

"It's ridiculous for us to be favored in this game," says Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame. "Coach John Ralston of Stanford, who played both, said Southern California was a better team than Purdue ... and Purdue beat us."

However, a couple of factors favor the Irish in this one. After losing to Purdue 28-14, Notre Dame (3-1) rebounded impressively by trouncing Michigan State and Army. And quarterback Joe Theismann, who has found a consistent target in sophomore end Tom Gatewood, figures to exploit the Trojans secondary, which helped allow Stanford 24 points last week.

The game at South Bend, Ind., is one of two Saturday matching teams on the Top Twenty. In the other, seventh-ranked Tennessee plays at Alabama, No. 20, Texas, No. 2, and fourth-ranked Arkansas have the day off.

In the other top games, No. 1 Ohio State plays at Minnesota; No. 5 Penn State clashes with Syracuse; Missouri, No. 6, entertains Oklahoma State; eighth-ranked UCLA plays California; Louisiana State, No. 9, plays at Kentucky; Colorado visits Oklahoma, No. 12; Michigan, the 13th-ranked team, is at Michigan State; No. 14 Georgia plays at Vanderbilt; Auburn, No. 15, visits Georgia Tech; Wyoming, No. 16, entertains Brigham Young; Iowa plays at No. 17 Purdue; Washington State takes on Stanford, No. 18, and Southern Mississippi is at Mississippi, No. 10.

Southern California (4-0) impressed with resounding victories over Nebraska and Northwestern, but had to pull out a shaky 26-24 game over Stanford last week with a last-minute field goal.

The offense is led by tailback Clarence Davis, the nation's No. 2 rusher, and quarterback phenom Jimmy Jones.

Alabama's once-proud defense has crumbled this year, yielding an average of 415.3 yards a game to four opponents. The Crimson Tide will have to be stronger to withstand the Volunteers' flashy offense, which has scored 157 points in four games—a 39.3 average.

Ohio State, which has averaged over 50 points a game, should have little trouble in stopping the winless Gophers, a Big Ten brother.

Penn State and Syracuse will be playing for football supremacy in the East. Halfback Charlie Pittman can race around the opposition, and figures to give Syracuse plenty of trouble with his end sprints.

Missouri's Tigers rank as solid favorites over outgunned Oklahoma State by virtue of a 17-7 victory over tough Nebraska last Saturday.

UCLA unfurls its triple option against California, with young quarterback Dennis Dummit, the catalyst.

Palmer Still Very Much in Contention

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Golf Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Arnold Palmer is back. And Doug Sanders vow's he'll be back.

"I'm not giving up," the colorful Sanders said Thursday after shooting a six under par 65 for the first round lead in the 100,000 Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament.

"If I don't improve," he noted "I'm going to have to be out there in those Monday qualifying rounds, and I don't think I'd like that."

Sanders, one-time glamor-boy of the tour now a graying 36, hasn't won since 1967, has made only $20,720 on the tour this year and is in danger of losing his exempt status.

He held a one-stroke lead over a trio of longshots—rookies Ted Hayes Jr. and Bob Menne and teaching pro Ed Merrins—going into today's second round, with Palmer still very much in contention.

Palmer, out of action since an arthritic right hip forced him off the tour during the PGA National Championship more than two months ago, came back with a solid 69.

"It was a pretty mediocre round," the 40-year-old Palmer said. "I hit some good tee shots and some bad ones. My irons still leave a lot to be desired, but they may come around. I made a couple of putts, but I missed a couple of short ones, too. I didn't play that well, but I didn't play that badly either," he said. It was Palmer's first competitive round since a pain-ravaged 82 in the PGA, a round that many thought signaled the end of his brilliant career.

Henderson, Arkansas State Picked

By HARRY KING

Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Bill Templeton, Arkansas State University's offensive backfield coach, says the running style of sophomore tailback Calvin Harrell is best described by his nickname.

Harrell's teammates call him "wild man." Harrell's debut at tailback was from auspicious. He gained six yards on four carries.

However, after seeing Harrell rack up 138 yards against The Citadel and 107 yards against Tennessee Tech, ASU fans are saying he could be better than Frank McGulgan by the time he completes his eligibility.

McGulgan was the Indians' meal ticket when they won the Southland Conference championship last year.

"Harrell doesn't have the breakaway speed that you might desire, but he is as strong a running back as I've ever seen," Templeton said. "He obviously has a lot to learn but he already does things like find the soft spot and break tackles, which are the kind of natural abilities that you really can't teach a boy."

Harrell, a 200-pounder from Memphis, was a wide receiver as a freshman. He was moved to runningback in the spring, but was held out of contact work because of a hip injury.

Before the season began, Coach Bennie Ellender admitted that the Indians could be better than last year's SLC champs if they could find a tailback.

The Indians are 2-1, with only a loss to The Citadel marring their record. They take on Southwestern Louisiana Saturday night at Little Rock before heading into their conference schedule.

Harrell is not the Indians' only offensive weapon. Quarterback James Hamilton, a sophomore of Marked Tree has passed for 1,863 yards—30 yards short of the career record set by Billy Caldwell in 1959.

The Indians also boast All-America candidate Clovis Swinney at defensive tackle. Swinney was voted the conference's top defensive player last year, edging teammate Bill Bergey.

Bergey is now playing middle linebacker for the Cincinnati Bengals of the American Football League.

The kickoff is set for 8 p.m.

East Tennessee State is among the elite of small college football, but a familiar name, Grambling, is missing.

East Tennessee State, unranked last week, trounced Tennessee State 30-7 and moved into 10th place in The Associated Press small college poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

Grambling suffered its second defeat against two victories 34-20 to Tennessee State last Saturday, and dropped from fifth all the way out of the top 20.

Hodges Felt Better by One Game

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When a sports writer asked Gil Hodges how he felt about the Mets' chances after they had taken a 3-1 lead in the World Series, his answer was a typical low key: "Much better than yesterday... one game better."

Hodges is the quiet type, a man who could play the old Gary Cooper roles in the movies, a master of understatement. Devoted to his wife and four children, he lives modestly in a split level home in Flatbush, only 20 minutes away from Shea Stadium by car.

Gil's wife, the former Joan Lombardi is a Brooklyn girl and he has made his home in the borough ever since he left Indiana to join the old Brooklyn Dodgers at Ebbets Field.

Back home in Princeton, Ind. (population 3,000) they still remember Gil as a former all-time boy who moved on to St. Joseph's College at Rensselaer, Ind., the marines, and eventually to baseball as a Dodger first baseman.

An original Met who was drafted for $75,000 when the first club was formed in October, 1961, Gil played briefly for Casey Stengel in 1962 and early 1963 before leaving to take a job as manager of the Washington Senators. He came back home to manage the Mets as the successor to Wes Westrum after the 1967 season.

"We're looking for a man who will win the pennant for us," said J. Donald Grant, the chairman of the Mets' board of directors who felt it necessary to add, "That may sound facetious, but we're looking for a man who will move us up in the standings."

"It's time, I think, that we did something about the clown image of the Mets," Hodges said. "Baseball is a serious business most of the time, no laughing matter. Maybe we ought to play down that clown image of the New Breed. We saw at Fenway Park in 1967 where accomplishment replaced complacency and the impossible dream was realized. Maybe the impossible is beyond our reach but no one can tell me that competitive respectability cannot be attained."

It was a long speech for Hodges but he meant every word of it. It was obvious from the start of spring training at St. Petersburg in his first year that he would insist on a no-nonsense approach. A curfew, a ban on poker playing, controls on drinking and a system of fines of a minimum of $25 for mental mistakes were instituted.

The "good guy" image, cherished by all who knew him well, was not going to prevent Hodges from being a strong, all-business leader on the bench and in the clubhouse.

The Mets, who had finished 10th every year except one in their brief existence, climbed to ninth in 1968 and even flirted with the .500 mark for a time. The addition of Jerry Koosman to the already established Tom Seaver lifted the club out of the ragsmuffin class.

"It is time for us to get up to .500 anyhow," said Gil last spring at St. Petersburg. "We are going to improve quite a bit. Naturally, the St. Louis club is the tough team in our division. It is history now that the Mets amazed the baseball world by breaking over .500 in May, catching the Chicago Cubs in September and then going on to win the National East, the pennant and now the World Series."

Hodges' heart attack of Sept. 24, 1968, has been all but forgotten. But there were grave doubts last spring that he would be able to stand up to the rugged demands of constant pressure and the physical demands of 162 games and long-road trips. Gil at 45, was not among the doubters.

"If I thought I was going to be bothered in any way, I just wouldn't have come back," he said. "After all, your first concern is your own life and family. Since they tell me I can do everything, I am back. I'm happier doing this than anything else. I just won't let it get me. After all, we all have problems in regular life. People worry about their business or something else. I just won't let it get me."

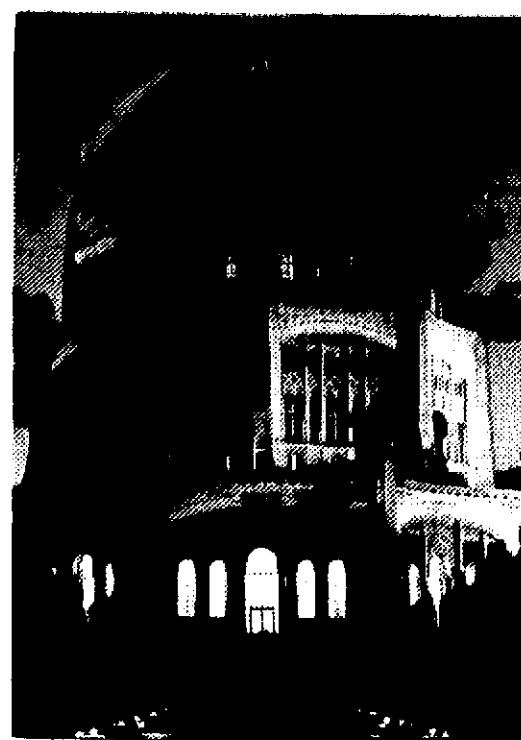

It was all well and good to talk like that but Hodges' mild heart attack had forced some changes in his normal routine. He gave up smoking, watched his diet carefully and took long walks. In Florida he used to walk to work every morning, accompanied by his pitching coach, portly Rube Walker.

Gil seldom loses his cool but he locked the clubhouse door and gave the Mets a good going over in mid-May after they had thrown away a game in Atlanta. The Mets became a team under Hodges, subordinating individual effort for team play. The bromide about all 25 men sharing the job really was true in the case of the Mets.

The "good guy" approach let the Mets know who was boss. Nobody dragged his feet and there were no open complaints when he adroitly juggled his right-handed and left-handed batting orders or went to the mound to get a pitcher who was in trouble.

The Mets knew Hodges had been there himself. He hit 370 home runs during his 16 years in the majors and had a career batting average of .273. Some of them also knew he once went 0-for-21 through the entire 1952 World Series and carried his slump into the early stages of the following year.

They must have read about the parish priest in Brooklyn who, one hot Sunday in May, 1953, told his parishioners "It's too hot for a sermon today, go home and say a prayer for Gil Hodges."

LET THERE BE LIGHT. The Bahai House of Worship, a well-known landmark in the Chicago suburb of Wilmette, Ill., has been brilliantly floodlighted with a unique blend of "warm" and "cool" light. The temple is the first major house of worship in the world to use this dramatic new lighting technique. It creates a subtle transition from warm, "golden-white" tone at base to a cool, "blue-white" hue at top of 165-foot structure. Photo at left shows temple as it appeared before introduction of GE light system, right, which makes it visible from downtown Chicago, 18 miles away.

Met Owner Credits the Win to Guts

By SHEILA MORAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Joan Payson, the owner of the New York Mets, credited her team's Cinderella victory in the World Series to guts rather than destiny.

"They're a gutsy bunch of boys, that's all," said this 66-year-old dowager who plunked down $5 million from a personal income estimated at $200 million eight years ago to acquire the Mets.

Mrs. Payson thought of her players' safety before her own during the wild melee that erupted on the field when the fifth game ended Thursday.

"Those kids tried to get on the field even before the last out," she said. "One big youngster climbed through our box before the players got off the field and I told him, 'You better be careful! What if you hurt one of the players?'"

Mrs. Payson's box is next to the Met dugout and she was hustled through the dugout after the game to avoid the crush of exuberant fans.

"I got out just in time," she said. "As it was, one of the youngsters knocked me down."

Mrs. Payson visited her players in the dressing room and her face was wet with tears and champagne when she came out. She talked with President Nixon on the telephone, then went to a private reception in the Mets' directors' room, and then stopped in the Diamond Club to visit with the players' wives.

Someone asked her what she

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The University of Arkansas' freshmen football team will go after its third straight victory here this afternoon, taking on Oklahoma State's Colts.

The Shoats beat SMU 20-13 and Texas Tech 23-22. It will be the season opener for the Colts.

The Mets became a team under Hodges, subordinating individual effort for team play. The bromide about all 25 men sharing the job really was true in the case of the Mets.

The "good guy" approach let the Mets know who was boss. Nobody dragged his feet and there were no open complaints when he adroitly juggled his right-handed and left-handed batting orders or went to the mound to get a pitcher who was in trouble.

The Mets knew Hodges had been there himself. He hit 370 home runs during his 16 years in the majors and had a career batting average of .273. Some of them also knew he once went 0-for-21 through the entire 1952 World Series and carried his slump into the early stages of the following year.

They must have read about the parish priest in Brooklyn who, one hot Sunday in May, 1953, told his parishioners "It's too hot for a sermon today, go home and say a prayer for Gil Hodges."

would do now that it was all over and she said, "I don't know what I'm doing tomorrow, I don't even know what I'm doing right now."

Mrs. Payson was accompanied by an entourage of family which included her husband, Charles Shiptman Payson, For Mr. Payson, a 71-year-old industrialist who is wealthy in his own right, the Mets' victory was particularly sweet.

"Today is my birthday, and what a present!" he said. Joan Payson is as earthy and affectionate as she is rich and a knot of fans cheered as she left Shea Stadium. As she climbed into her Bentley, a youngster presented her with a paper cup filled with a clump of grass.

"It's from center field," the boy said.

Impressive Debut for Broderick

By LARRY PALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — For Ken Broderick it was an impressive and unforgettable National Hockey League debut.

But for Bill Gadsby it was a shocking and unforgettable NHL exit.

Gadsby, the Detroit Red Wing coach last season and for Detroit's 2-0 record through Wednesday of this season, was fired without warning an hour before Thursday night's game against Minnesota.

Four hours later the North Stars were 3-2 victors over the stunned Wings, who played fired-up hockey in the final period, seemingly in response to the "We want Gadsby. We want Gadsby," chanting on the crowd of 11,000 at Olympia Stadium.

But Broderick, a 27-year-old rookie, was brilliant in the nets. He repulsed shot after blazing shot in the third period, 18 in all, and a total of 32 for the night and was subsequently chosen the game's outstanding player by press box consensus.

"Before we realized they had knocked us on our fannies," said Sid Abel, general manager and acting coach.

"We weren't ready to play," he added. "I didn't know the lines that well."

Abel, who was the team's coach from 1958 through the 1966-67 season, said he told the players the news of Gadsby's firing before the game.

"I think they took it well," he said.

Bruce Norris, owner and team president who gave Gadsby the ax, said "I don't think the loss tonight was a result of this."

Back-to-back goals by Claude Larose in the first period following a goal by Danny Grant gave the North Stars a 3-1 lead. Detroit took an early lead, with defenseman Ron Harris flipping the puck past Broderick on an assist from Gary Unger at 10:49.

The second period was score-

Suns Rally to Defeat San Diego Team

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Phoenix Suns, who last season ended up in the Western Division cellar, held off a late rally to topple the San Diego Rockets, 116-114, in National Basketball Association game Thursday.

The Suns held the lead through most of the contest until late in the fourth quarter when San Diego center Elvin Hayes tied the score.

During the final 43 seconds guard Gail Goodrich dropped in two free throws and then stole the ball to save the season opener for the Suns.

FORWARDS—Kerr probably will put Hawkins up front, but he can also play center. At 6-8, Hawkins has so much versatility he could probably play backcourt, too. Paul Silas, whom the Suns acquired in a trade with Atlanta, will help up front also. Rating—B-.

CENTER—Rookie Luke, who came out of the University of Florida and bagged himself a $500,000 contract, will get first crack at the job if he fails. Jim Fox will step in. Rating—C-.

BACKCOURT—Gail Goodrich (23-8) and Dick Van Arsdale (21-8) and excellent jobs last season. Both can shoot and are scrappers. Backing them up are Stan MacKenzie, Dick Snyder and Bob Worlick. Rating—B.

ROOKIES—Although not officially classified as a rookie, Hawkins might give Lew Alcindor some competition as the league's best first year man. Walk, despite high salary must prove he can score.

less, but not without action. By that time the crowd had gotten wind of Gadsby's fate and started their chanting. The Red Wings suddenly began checking and skating harder.

Grant's first period goal tied the game at 1-1 at 13:22. He wrapped in his own rebound off the pads of Detroit goalie Roy Edwards.

East's two remaining trumps but it also allowed South to

The ace, king and jack of

Just for the record, a

Here is another hand from the August ACBL Bulletin.
This one is from the brilliant pen and fertile imagination of Victor Mollo, and illustrates some of the differences between rubber bridge and duplicate.
He explains that North and South had a part-score of 60
but once they got started bidding they couldn't seem to stop short of the slam.

South looked over dummy and was quite pleased with his contract. Assuming reasonable breaks in all suits, he could count 12 tricks if either the diamond or spade finesse worked. He would probably come out with 13 tricks if they both did.
South happened to be a pessimistic expert and he thought a trifle further. Suppose neither finesse would work? Could he make it?
The answer was yes, provided diamonds would divide 3-2. At trick two, our pessimist ruffed a heart with a small trump. At trick three,
he led the six of diamonds toward dummy. West rose with the queen and shifted to a spade. South went right up with the ace and ruffed dummy's last heart. Then he cashed his ace and queen of clubs. The next step was to enter dummy with the 10 of diamonds, in order to play

Special Meet Necessary, Says Governor

By CAROLYN KATZ (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller said today that the problems created by federal programs had made a special session of the legislature a must.

Rockefeller told newsmen that he would call the legislature into session probably in late December or early January.

The governor said the situation "demands that some changes have to be made before the next regular session."

For several months, Rockefeller has been saying he might call a special session to deal with those portions of his tax program that failed in this year's regular session.

The governor, who had said he would call a special session if the people indicated they wanted one, said there appeared to be a "groundswell" of support for a session. He said indications were that legislators are beginning to be "more interested" in the items that may be included in the call.

"I'm beginning to feel more and more that the people are talking to legislators and legislators are coming to me and saying to me that maybe we could have this special session a little bit earlier than we've been talking about," Rockefeller said.

The governor said he did not want the special session to conflict with the Constitutional Convention, which returns Jan. 12 to complete its final draft.

Rockefeller, who has said the 1969 legislature took longer to do less than any session in history, said he would meet with as many legislators as possible before the session "because I do not want to see another do-nothing session."

On another subject, the governor was asked if the quality of education in the state had been improved by integration.

"We don't have room for first and second class citizens in the United States and that's one of the things I fought for in World War II, that we would have freedom for all," Rockefeller said.

"Because of the fact that we have delayed in facing our moral obligations for these hundreds of years and because it is disquieting and, in some instances it definitely has been damaging, we are correcting the situation at long last," he said. "I think all proud Americans ought to be willing to co-operate to the maximum in correcting a wrong that has existed for years and doing it quickly and as painlessly as we can."

PERSONAL FINANCE

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

Watch the market carefully in October. If you're a market watcher, you're one of the worst slumps in recent years is going to run its course this year, the odds are that the upturn will come in October, on the basis of fairly consistent behavior patterns over the last 20 or 25 years.

There are some well-established, seasonal fluctuations in the securities market. Not quite as predictable as after-the-fourth sales on summer clothes or the January white sales, but Wall Street does have its own seasonal sales.

The period in which there's the most marked seasonal demand for stocks are the cold-weather months—

Pratt

November, December and January. On the historical record, this has been the most bullish three-month period of the year since World War II.

In only two years—1957 and 1967—has the market failed to post a substantial rise between early October and early January. Since 1949, the average gain for this period has been 5.6 per cent.

And, as this year's "Stock Trader's Almanac & Record" points out, this seasonal surge has helped stem the tide of five major bear markets—in 1946, 1957, 1960, 1962 and 1966. October has thus justly earned a reputation as "the bear-killer," says Almanac editor Yale Hirsch.

The combination desk calendar and compendium of market information produced some pretty accurate crystal-gazing just a year ago, and a lot of investors who have been singing the '69 blues would be a happier lot today if they had read and believed its doleful predictions.

Remember that the Almanac, being part desk calendar, has to get this in type well before the end of the year. There's no room for Monday-morning quarterbacking. In fact, the 1969 forecast by George Lindsay, one of Wall Street's better-known seers, was prepared back in September, 1968—a month that ended with the Dow-Jones average around 936. It was due to fall more than 100 points by September, 1969.

Here are some excerpts from the Lindsay forecast of a year ago:

"The coming year shapes up as a troublesome one for the market. . . . It seems likely that the Dow-Jones average will already be down from its high by the turn of the year. It will then drop further. . . ."

All this happened right on schedule and was followed by the "series of small rallies" Lindsay predicted. "The market should turn down again at the end of May or in the first week of June," and after a lesser summer rally "is over, the second big decline of 1969 will get under way. The greatest weakness will come

Zodiac Killer Wants to Kill a Few Kids

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The killer who calls himself "Zodiac" and boasts of five victims now writes that he wants to add to his death list by hitting a school bus so he can "pick off the kiddies as they come bouncing out."

After his latest letter was sent to the San Francisco Chronicle, police issued special instructions Thursday to school bus drivers to keep buses moving "at all costs" in event of an attack, to instruct passengers to lie on the floor, and to attract attention with their horns and lights.

"School children make nice targets," he wrote the newspaper. "I think I shall wipe out a school bus some morning. Just shoot out the front tire and then pick off the kiddies as they come bouncing out."

"I am admittedly apprehensive about another murder occurring in the near future," said Capt. Martin Lee, chief of the city's detectives called the Zodiac killer "an extremely dangerous psychopath."

Letters to newspapers marked with a cross-hair symbol of a rifle sight, have boasted of killing a city taxi driver, Paul Stine, 29, here last Saturday and of four earlier weekend slayings, all in San Francisco Bay area lovers lanes.

A deciphered cryptogram sent to three newspapers in this area said: "I like killing people because it is so much fun. It is more fun than killing wild game in the forest because man is the most dangerous animal of all."

Other victims were Darlene E. Ferrin, 22, killed last July 4 near Vallejo; Betty Lou Jensen, 16, and David Fraday, 17, both of Vallejo, Dec. 20; and Cecelia Ann Shepard, 22, Sept. 27, near Napa. The male escorts of Miss Ferrin and Miss Shepard were wounded.

Police revised a description of the cab driver's killer. They now quote witnesses as saying the man is a white male, about 40 years old, with a heavy build and short brown hair, possibly with a red tint.

The letter boasting of the taxi driver's death contained a piece of bloodstained cloth from the victim's shirt. Hand writing in all the notes is identical, Lee said.

in August and September."

Anyone who was that right about 1969 is worth listening to, and here's what Lindsay's Almanac forecast had to say about the rest of the year:

"The bottom in the autumn of 1969 will be of major importance—an excellent time to buy stocks for the long pull. The main trend may well be upward for five years afterward. Any level between 744 and 825 would constitute a rare buying opportunity."

The Dow-Jones stood at 825 in mid-September, a year after Lindsay wrote his forecast.

So, if you're a market watcher, you might very profitably keep a close watch on October, the bear-killer month—and also historically, as the Almanac points out, "the big bargain month of the post-World War II era."

Man Found Shot In Dock Area

CARUTHERSVILLE, Mo. (AP)—Willie Daniels, 26, of Helena was found shot Thursday in the dock area along the Mississippi River at Caruthersville.

He reportedly worked on a boat docked in the area. Authorities said he underwent surgery at a Haiti, Mo. hospital and that no details of the shooting were available.

Pledges Money to Be Used on Roads

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—The leaders of the Arkansas petroleum industry pledged here Wednesday at a meeting of the Arkansas Petroleum Council to see that a $7.1 million windfall in highway revenue funds is used for public road construction.

Some expressed fear that there might be an attempt in the 1971 legislature to divert the windfall to other uses.

The funds may become available next year. It is expected that enough money will be set aside in a reserve fund to make the final payment of $136,330,557 in 1941 state highway refunding bonds.

Earlier this year, two windfalls contributed to a legislative fight over turnpikes. Some said the funds should be used to guarantee payments on turnpike bonds while the Arkansas Automobile Club suggested that the funds, and a proposed one-cent-a-gallon tax increase, be used as the basis for a $300 million highway construction program.

Those interviewed Wednesday said they favored a provision in the state Constitution that insures all highway revenue go to the state, counties and cities for road and street improvement.

Dean Bridges of Little Rock, chairman of the council, was one of the persons who urged that the funds not be diverted. He said a greater effort should be made to attract tourists through highway improvement.

State Rep. William F. Foster of England said he believed that "the pressure from the state Highway Department, cities and counties would be powerful enough to see that the anticipated windfall money is not diverted."

State Rep. Wayne N. Courtney of Forrest City agreed with Bridges on the tourist angle, saying, "If Arkansas doesn't improve its highways, our tourist industry is going to suffer."

Coexistence Group Now Incorporated

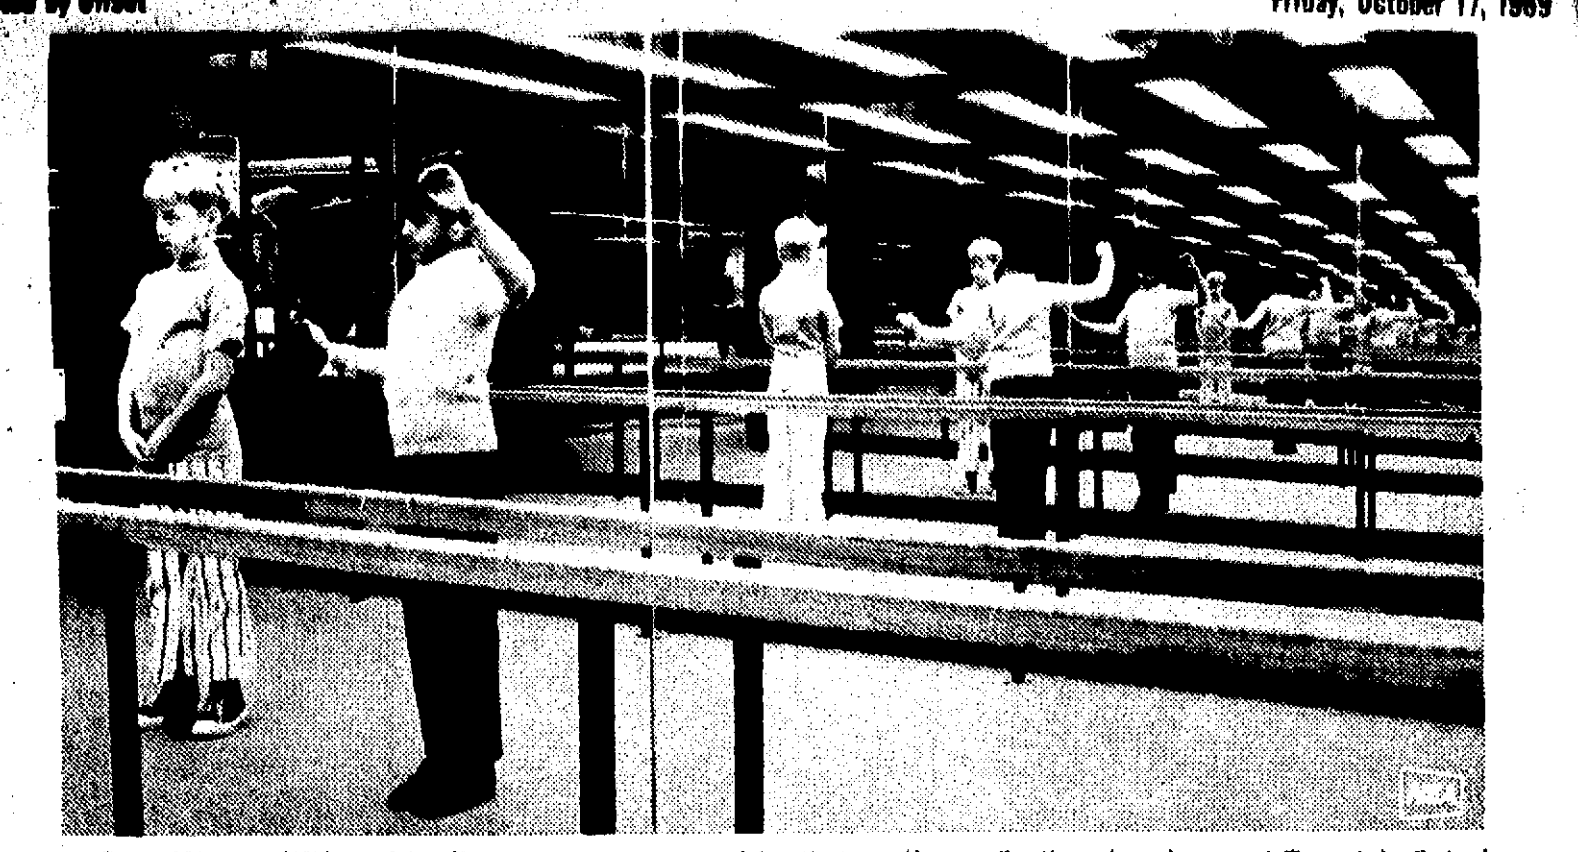

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Committee for Peaceful Coexistence, which lists Mrs. Nevada Black of Forrest City as its president, became an official corporation Thursday.

The Rev. J. F. Cooley, also of Forrest City, was listed as vice president of the Negro group which came to public attention during the racial troubles at Forrest City this summer.

A release announcing the incorporation said the group now has 770 members and that membership is not limited to one race.

The release also said that many times the committee "received a bad image which was unfortunate. But, the committee itself has never deviated from its original stand in adhering to law and order, legal and Christian principles and working with the white and black leaders of the community. This is still the committee's objective today."

Series Turns Into Oriole Nightmare

By GORDON BEARD

Associated Press Sports Writer BALTIMORE (AP) — The World Series dream of the Baltimore Orioles has turned into a nightmare. Or, even worse.

"Even in a nightmare you couldn't dream up the things that happened to us," outfielder Frank Robinson said, "Hollywood wouldn't believe it, either."

If any of the Orioles do suffer mid-winter insomnia, they'll doubt envision the New York Mets making fantastic catches or standing in the way of line drives.

Time after time the Mets choked off budding Baltimore rallies with their gloves as they won the World Series with four consecutive victories after losing the opener.

By actual count, the Orioles slammed four outfield line drives in the second game and five infield shots either on the ground or in the air, with shortstop Bud Harrelson making a diving catch of Don Buford's liner.

But that was only the warmup of bigger things. In the next three games, catches by the Amazin' Mets included:

—Two sensational grabs in game No. 2 by center fielder Tommie Agee, robbing Ellie Hendricks and Paul Blair of extra base hits while preventing five Baltimore runs from scoring.

—A sliding catch by left fielder Cleon Jones on a drive by Dave Johnson in game No. 3, and a diving grab by right fielder Ron Swoboda on a two-out liner by Brooks Robinson in the ninth inning with two runners aboard.

The catch by Swoboda, not known for his defensive prowess, seemed implausible. The Orioles also thought it was a bad play.

"He should have played it safe," Robinson said. "The runner was going to score from third base anyway, to tie the score. Had the ball gotten past, we would have won to even the Series 2-2."

But the catch was made, and the Mets are the new champions of baseball.

"We hit so many shots," Johnson sighed after the game.

"You can't beat magic," reserve outfielder Curt Motton said, echoing the oft-repeated description of the Mets, who overcame 100-1 preseason odds and won everything in sight.

Manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles, who won the American League pennant in his first full season as a major league skipper, disagreed.

"The Mets aren't lucky and they don't need gremlins to win," he said. "No other pitching staff contained us as well during the year."

The Orioles, who compiled a .265 team batting average while winning 109 regular season games, hit .146 in the Series and scored only nine runs on 23 hits. Three of the runs were batted in by pitchers.

"We won all those games, but we didn't win the one which counted," Frank Robinson said. "I still feel we have the best club, position by position, but the Mets have a fine team. This is proof of what can happen in a short series."

"The Mets beat the best damn ball club in sight," Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn told Weaver after the final game.

A crowd of 4,000 which welcomed the Orioles home at Friendship International Airport Thursday night, carried signs which proclaimed: "We're still No. 1," "Win or lose, Orioles we love you," and "You're still No. 1 with us."

"We're going to win the pennant again next year," Weaver said. "I didn't make that kind of prediction for 1969, but I am now for next year. And, I hope the Mets win again. We'd like another shot at them."

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Floating Kidney Causes No Symptoms

Q—I have a dropped kidney. Could it cause my backache?

A—A dropped or floating kidney is often seen in persons who are grossly underweight. It causes no symptoms unless it drops so far as to produce a kinking in the ureter. This might cause a colicky pain but not a typical backache. If it can be demonstrated that any of your symptoms are caused by the dropped kidney, try bringing your weight up to normal. If this does not help, you may have to have an operation to anchor your kidney in place.

Q—X says show that my son, 25, has a double kidney. Is this rare? What complications might arise? Does alcohol in moderation aggravate this condition?

A—A double kidney on one or both sides is not as rare as was once thought. Usually the extra kidney is small. If it is found to be nonfunctioning, it should be removed because such a kidney is highly susceptible to cancer. Alcohol in moderation would not affect it.

Q—What is the cause of polycystic kidneys? Do they cause high blood pressure?

A—This is a hereditary abnormality that is often not discovered until a person is 30 and may be found only at autopsy in a person who has lived a full life without any kidney trouble. It does not cause high blood pressure but anyone who knows he has this condition should have periodic examinations of his kidney function.

Q—I am a man, 21. I have kidney trouble which my doctor says I'll have the rest of my life. Would I be able to father a child or are all my sperms dead?

A—Since sperm formation is in no way dependent on your kidneys, there is a good chance that you can become a father. If you have any reason to doubt your ability the question can easily be resolved by an examination of your seminal fluid.

Q—In a recent column you described neurofibromatosis or von Recklinghausen's disease as characterized by small, pigmented growths on the skin. What color are they? My dictionary, under Recklinghausen's disease, says it is also associated with morbid changes in the bones? Is this common?

A—The growths are a pale yellow brown and usually have a diameter of 1.5 centimeters or more. In advanced cases cysts may form on the surface of the shin bone.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The World Almanac says that Manhattan's Central Park, that consoling patch of green in the midst of skyscrapers, owes thanks for its existence to poet William Cullen Bryant. In the summer of 1844, he suggested in the New York Evening Post that a park would be most welcome. The authorities took up Bryant's cause and bought up 840 acres of land, providing the city with a "rural retreat" appreciated today more than ever.

At 62, Adam Clayton Still Doing His Thing

"Baby," he puts it, "I've paid my dues. So I don't give a damn what anybody is saying about me. If they think I'm nasty, or blasphemous, then so be it. I'm just doing my thing, baby, my thing."

No one, actually, has ever determined exactly what Adam Clayton Powell's "thing" is. But it definitely isn't indulging in attitude change. At 62 (in November), he's as swingingly stubborn as he was 25 years ago when he first marched to Congress.

Not even the contempt of his peers wits him. He was excluded from the 90th Congress completely, charged with "gross misconduct" in using public funds for travel and salaries of nonworking staff members. But after re-seating this year, at the ruling of the Supreme Court, he still thinks "this place (Congress) is the most ridiculous place on earth."

Mellowing? Congress, in reinstating the black bon vivant, voted to dock his salary by $25,000 to recoup "misuse" losses. He has countered by doing "part-time work for part-time pay." He has voted on the floor only eight times this session and has yet to attend his first committee meeting.

Why should I break my neck? he explains. "After they take my money away I only get about $1,000 a month. Some of my staff makes more than that. I'm a high liver. I got to have more money than that."

Fortunately, for Adam Powell, more money is easy to come by. He says he makes frequent appearances before college students at that's what religion is all about."

Earnings from comments on "The Man" included, Representative Powell figures to make "a pretty good living this year"—at least $100,000.

And he'll need it. He has a home in Puerto Rico, a home in Bimini, a home in Harlem, a room in Washington.

TIEDE

He has three ex-wives, five children, a bodyguard and an assortment of heavy bills.

And, to be sure, he has also got some living to do: "My granddaddy always said that a woman is as old as she looks, but a man is as old as he feels. Well, I don't feel old. Neither did my granddaddy. I don't know how true it is, but the story is he still wanted to get rid of his wife—when he was 98, and she was 92."

Mellowing? Says Adam: "Draw your own conclusion, baby."

Outmanned
Buffalo
Letter

Long time no see bulletin from the Back 40 — miniature game preserve behind the editor's house—but here's one: There's been a big shakeup in the peck order of the geese and mallards. Formerly when I put out the corn the pair of native white geese, being the largest, ate first, followed by the Canadian Honker pair—with the ducks running a late third. Now everything is changed. Last Spring the Canada geese hatched out a gosling, today a full-grown warlike gander. Now the Canada geese are three instead of two—and they outstare the native pair and eat first. The native white gander ventured a challenge yesterday—and the wild Canadians ran him bowlegged. Three against two—and you're outmanned, and the old order changeth.

Mrs. J. Manuel Hamm, 116 W. Ave. C, drops me a note: "This morning, while in your office, I wanted to ask you a question but you were busy."

"I have just returned from a 10-day trip to Palo Duro Canyon, out Texas way. This is a yearly thing with a group of us. We always camp and have a well-organized what we call a 'wagon train.' I ride 'shotgun' and break the trail. But the most beautiful sight of all was a thousand head of buffalo. Now for the question:

"Do you know what the ruff on these animals is? Is it hair, fur, or wool? Since these animals are just like a moose — 'mad to begin with' — I didn't take time to ask one of them. But I want to know. No one was allowed to visit with them because the only thing they will run from is an Indian on a horse. "Got any buffalo material, anyone?"

No, Justine— I find we don't even have a buffalo editor. All I can do is give you an educated guess. I'd say the buffalo's ruff is hair— electrified, that is.

Editor The Star: My family are relative newcomers to the city of Hope. Let me state first, that we love it here; that we have no personal complaints. One question has arisen in my mind, however, and that is: "What is wrong with Hope's Chamber of Commerce? Is their inactivity caused by lack of support by the local merchants, or is it simply those persons employed by the C. of C.?" We went to the Third District Livestock Show parade and were most disappointed to see that so few of the floats were from Hope. I was even more disappointed the next day to learn that Hope's floats were not winners.

Publication of the foregoing letter was delayed because it had to be edited down for reasons of space—but we are publishing it just the same on the premise that all criticism in one way or another is constructive.

The chamber of commerce in every town is a favorite whipping boy. And yet it is like hitting a person who's down and can't defend himself. Hope's chamber is an average one, with limited personnel and very little money.

If it doesn't perform like an industrial giant it's because, I assure you, it is certainly no giant. It's simply the yardstick by which you measure the promotional push of a town—if the C. of C. hasn't much money or push it's the fault of the citizens as a whole; they have the money but lack the urge.

I use the term "citizens" advisedly. That means all of us—individuals as well as business houses. The obligation to support the chamber with money and work is no greater upon the business houses than upon individual citizens—a point the individual frequently misses.

The Star contributes $240 annually to Hope Chamber of Commerce, making us one of the better donors. For that kind of money you aren't due much ac-

Draft Lottery Don Quixote of Modern Fate Question Penology Still Tilting Mill That Threw Him in Senate

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's plan to draft 19-year-olds first under a lottery system appears likely to win House approval next week but its fate in the Senate is an open question.

The House Armed Services Committee approved the plan aimed at giving 18-year-olds advance notice of their draft prospects by a surprise 31-0 vote Thursday. House leaders, who believe they can block efforts to tack wholesale revisions on the bill, almost immediately scheduled floor action for late next week, indicating there is little hard opposition there.

But reports from the Senate indicated Armed Services Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., was reluctant to put the bill on the floor where critics, who count Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., have a host of proposed revisions including

The Don Quixote of modern penology rode through Arkansas this week, still tilting at the windmill which unhorsed him in 1968.

I am convinced, Thomas O. Murton told students at the University of Arkansas' Symposium 1970, that what I discovered at Cummins Prison Farm was a secret graveyard where murdered convicts were buried. The flap over his unearthing of three skeletons at Cummins in January, 1968, led to his dismissal. It brought to an end a brief, but spectacular phase of prison reform in Arkansas.

It was a phase because reform actually had begun several years earlier when Gov. Orval E. Faubus named Dan D. Stephens as prison superintendent. Reform, despite what Murton says, has continued under his successors.

Stephens built a hospital, educational facilities, ball parks and it was he, not Murton, who

Wastebasket Is One Basic Marital Issue That Was Not Listed

By JOY STILLEY
NEW YORK (AP) — There are seven basic problems that lead to marital conflict, a New Jersey marriage counselor reports: children, sex, alcohol, in-laws, religion, housekeeping and finances.

Although she seems to have covered the subject pretty well, she has failed to touch on the basic problem in our household: who is going to run the wastebasket concession.

It's easier to sneak narcotics through customs than to sneak anything out of our house into the garbage can.

My husband has a distinct reverence for age. I'm not talking merely of his fondness for me but of his refusal to throw out anything that has been in his possession even briefly.

If I discard something when it is fairly new only a small reprimand ensues. But if anything has been around as long as a week it takes on all the value of a rare antique and my misdeed becomes a felony.

"You're not throwing out our dear little baby's teething ring," my hoarding husband says in horror. "Why, we've had that for years!"

Indeed we have. Since our dear little baby is now in college and chewing on her fingernails rather than a small plastic circle, I doubt if there's much of a future for that particular item. But it's small, so I retrieve it from the trash with only a minimum of argument.

However, the 20-year-old television set is big enough to fight for—or against. It has a seven-inch screen but is bulkier than modern ones with screens more than twice that size. President Writes Thanks for Big Melon

The following letter from President Richard Nixon thanking the Hope Chamber of Commerce for sending him the champion watermelon grown this year was received by Chamber President George Frazier:

October 2, 1969

Dear Mr. Frazier: One of the highlights of the recent reception for Republican Women was the presentation, by Congressman Webb, of Hope County's prize-winning 153-pound watermelon. Anyone who has seen this watermelon can understand why its claim to fame is not taken lightly!

I want to express my gratitude to you, your Chamber of Commerce membership, Mr. Lester Kent who grew the melon and to Mrs. Lynn Harris and Mrs. Jerri Pruden who helped in the arrangements for presenting it to me. Incidentally, everyone here agreed with Secretary Hardin that this prize-winner deserved wider recognition and you will be interested to know that the "Hope Melon" is now on display at the Department of Agriculture.

With my best wishes, Sincerely,

PRESIDENT RICHARD NIXON

Latest Peace Talks Action Emphasizes Deadlock on 2 Issues AP News Digest

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam's proposal for secret talks without Saigon and the prompt U.S. rejection of it emphasized the deadlock at the peace talks on two basic issues: the future of the Saigon regime and the withdrawal of all troops who aren't South Vietnamese.

Apparently seeking to cash in on the antiwar sentiment manifested in the Moratorium Day demonstrations in the United States, North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy proposed at the peace talks Thursday that the United States at once begin secret talks with the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge quickly countered with the long-held U.S. position that all four delegations at the peace talks must be represented in any private negotiations.

Talks without Saigon's representatives present would constitute a measure of U.S. recognition of the Viet Cong and would give Hanoi and its South Vietnamese allies a heavy weapon in their campaign to replace President Nguyen Van Thieu's government with a coalition regime.

Since the four-party talks began in January, Hanoi and the Viet Cong have repeatedly demanded that the United States abandon what they call its "puppet" regime in Saigon. They have rejected the U.S. See Latest Peace (On Page Two)

Deaths Show Vietnamese Fighting More

By GEORGE ESPEY
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese battlefield deaths during the past five months have been double those of American troops, pointing up the steadily increasing part the Vietnamese armed forces are taking in the war.

The pattern of rising South Vietnamese losses and lower numbers of American combat dead began the week of May 11-17, three weeks before President Nixon announced the first withdrawal of 25,000 U.S. troops. Official weekly casualty figures show 8,301 South Vietnamese government troops killed in the 22 weeks after May 10; U.S. losses were 4,134 killed.

In the first 19 weeks of the year, until May 10, South Vietnamese battlefield deaths totaled 4,930 while 4,292 Americans were killed in action.

The trend is the result of at least three things:

—The enemy is directing more of his attacks against small militia or home guard units protecting villages and hamlets in isolated or newly pacified areas. The strength of these units has been doubled, to 400,000 men, in recent months.

—With American units moving out and more withdrawals expected, the South Vietnamese army is taking on more of the fighting.

After the 9th Infantry Division left in the first U.S. withdrawal, for example, the South Vietnamese army took over defense of the entire Mekong Delta.

—In areas where South Vietnamese and American troops are operating together, the policy now is for the Vietnamese to search out enemy camps while the U.S. troops hold back. This exposes the Vietnamese to more danger.

Meanwhile, the six-week-old lull in the war continued, with only a handful of skirmishes reported. Spokesmen reported no U.S. casualties in any of the actions.

American forces killed 34 enemy troops in four clashes 28 to 70 miles north of Saigon. South Vietnamese regional forces suffered three men killed and 10 wounded in a fight 39 miles northwest of Saigon, but they reported killing 11 enemy soldiers.

U.S. headquarters reported 15 rocket and mortar attacks overnight, none against American installations. The Air Force said its B52s made eight raids, five of them against targets in Pleiku Province, 250 miles northeast of Saigon.

Mountaire Buys Into Local Firm

Nashville—Mountaire Poultry Co. has acquired an interest in Southwestern Frozen Foods, Inc. of Hope, President G. Ted Cameron has announced.

Expanded operation of the frozen food firm will include production and marketing of cooked and uncooked chickens and red meat products.

Mountaire Poultry, with completely integrated poultry and feed and other operations, is one of the leading feed and food firms of the Southwest.

Mountaire operates a feed mill and hatchery and has a central office in Nashville.

Southwestern Frozen Foods operates a plant at Hope and also has a second plant in Springfield, La. which is leased and has been renovated for production of cooked frozen items. The Mountaire kitchen label will be used with the cooked products.

President Cameron also announced plans for a new continuous-process by-products plant to be located near the firm's poultry processing plant at DeQueen.

Hugh Reese is president of Southwestern Frozen Foods.

Mr. Cameron said that purchase of the firm would give Mountaire an interest in the frozen food processes and represents a move into further processing and cooked foods area and into a portion of the controlled food industry.
